

SOCIETY

From the Adirondacks and Newport, from Atlantic City, from the Virginia mountains and the seashore, come rumors that the midsummer tide of gaiety will be at flood tide before the passing of July is chronicled. Because the season has been delayed by damp, cool weather, that has caused society to linger before taking its flight, the promise for the gaiety to be compressed within midsummer limits seems all the brighter and more alluring. The sailing and yachting parties with which other diversions are interspersed at the Virginia seashore, keep pace with the house parties and the camping parties, echoes of which come from different sections of the State, whose summer renders life a goodly heritage in July. The mountain resorts are taking on a bustle and activity, coincident with the arrival of many guests and the consequent inauguration of out-of-door and indoor entertaining attendant upon existence at the watering places of Virginia.

Richmonders Abroad.

From across the Atlantic news of Richmond tourists comes to indicate that this has been a banner year in England and on the continent, where everything has conspired for their pleasure and comfort. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gordon, who went to spend their honeymoon in England, are expected to return in August and to be in the Virginia mountains until the early autumn.

Miss Nina Randolph, who is the guest of Mrs. Lewis R. Ashurst, Jr., at Bryn Mawr, Pa., is being delightfully entertained by her hostess, who is a social leader at Bryn Mawr. Miss Randolph will spend July and August with her and visit many points of interest throughout Pennsylvania before returning to Virginia.

Mrs. Benjamin Nash and Miss Hatcher, who are now at Brunswick Inn, will go to Alleghany Hotel, Goshen, later in the season and spend the early autumn in a Northern tour.

Miss Helen Stevens is the hostess of a house party at her country home in Albemarle county, not far from Charlottesville. Drives to Natural Bridge, Lexington, Va., and other adjacent places have been devised for the entertainment of her guests by Miss Stevens, whose house parties are synonyms for all that is agreeable and full of enjoyment.

At Wyndover, where Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. J. Taylor Ellison have elected to spend their summer, in the shadow of the University of Virginia, Mrs. C. O. B. Cowardin has been a charming addition to the house and family party that will continue unbroken until October next.

Camping Parties Popular.

Probably one of the pleasantest forms of social out-of-door life, is found in the camping parties for young people that have been so much in vogue during late years. The freedom from conventional stiffness in these parties, the absence of the demand for fine dressing and the opportunity for rest and change of scenery, render them ideal affairs in the promotion of good fellowship and sympathy between young people.

Richmond people are leaders as usual, wherever midsummer society and fashion is congregated. At Newport, Mrs. James Brown Potter, formerly Miss May Handy, who is occupying the Gilbert cottage, is as much of a belle as she was before her marriage, when her home was in this city.

At the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, the Newport of the South, it is already predicted that Miss Page Aylitt Royall and Miss Allene Stokes will be among the most admired young ladies there. The meeting of the Bar Association at the White Sulphur in August will bring together a brilliant array of beauty and legal talent to renew the prestige of this famous mountain resort.

Miss Mary W. Lewis, who is summering at Bar Harbor, is one of the popular young women of that resort, and is enjoying the pleasures it affords to the last degree.

MISS MARGUERITE ROSSER.

Miss Rosser is the daughter of General and Mrs. Thomas L. Rosser of "Rugby Hall," near Charlottesville, Va., whose engagement to Mr. Almond Blow Elliott of New York, has just been announced. The wedding will take place next October.

joying the pleasures it affords to the last degree.

Virginia Colonial Homes.

"Town and Country" of July 7th, contains beautiful pictures of several Loudoun county colonial homes. "Morven Park," owned by Mr. and Mrs. Westmoreland Davis; "Outlands House," the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bustis, and "Rock Spring Farm," where Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Harrison live.

As the owners of these lovely homes have many Richmond friends, a little sketch is given of each.

Morven Park.

Morven Park, in Loudoun county, was built by the late Governor, Swan, of Maryland, and during his regime was noted for its open-handed, open-hearted hospitality. It is near Leesburg, Va., and is now owned by Mr. Westmoreland Davis, formerly of Richmond, but for some years a resident of New York, his country home in that State being at Tuxedo.

Mr. Davis is master of the Loudoun Hunt Club, and "Morven Park," under his management, is rapidly becoming one of the finest stock farms in the country. The house is a typical example of Virginia colonial architecture.

The Loudoun Hunt Club, with Mr. Davis as master, is making elaborate preparations for the next hunting season. New hounds are being trained by Mr. Robert Dodd, the club's huntsman.

Mrs. Davis, who before her marriage was Miss Marguerite Inman, of New York, is noted both abroad and in the United States for her fine horsemanship. She will follow the hounds next season on her prize mare, "Lady Godiva." Mr. and Mrs. Davis have hunted several seasons in England, but they prefer the upper country of Virginia as a hunting field, to any other.

Outlands House.

"Outlands House" was purchased several years ago by Mr. William Corcoran Esq., a nephew of the late W. W. Corcoran, of Washington, D. C., whose charming wife is a daughter of the Hon. Levi P. Morton.

This colonial mansion belonged to the late George Carter, of Virginia, and was built by him on land bought by his father, Robert Carter, from Lord Fairfax, of Greenway Court.

Mr. Bustis has occupied himself, since "Outlands House" came into his hands, in the work of renovation, particularly in the restoration of the terraces, for which his garden was famed. The house is about six miles west from Leesburg.

Mr. Bustis is also busy in establishing a splendid stable of fine hunters at Outlands. His wife is a delightful hostess, and he has two lovely little daughters.

Rock Spring Farm.

The name Harrison in Virginia tells its own story, and the association of Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Harrison with the picture of their well-shaded lawn, the house with its spacious southern piazza, the carriage and horses in the driveway, will recall pleasant memories in the minds of Richmonders who recall the fine flavor of hospitality at Rock Spring Farm.

Oak Grove House Party.

Mrs. Terrell, wife of Dr. Emmett Terrell, of this city, is entertaining a house party at her mother's country home, "Oak Grove," Hanover county, Va.

Among her guests are Mr. and Mrs. Lefew, Miss Mildred Lefew, and Dr. Terrell, of Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gunter, of Pennsylvania; Mr. Harry Baker, of Ashland; Misses Janie and Adelle Bledsoe, and Messrs. Elliott, of Hanover, and Miss Carrie Smith, of Covington, Va.

Chairman of Committee.

Mrs. Hugh Nelson Page, of Norfolk, prominent socially and as a member of the Society of Colonial Dames in the State of Virginia, has been appointed by Mrs. William Ruffin Cox, president of the National Society of Dames, as chairman of the committee in charge of the Dames' exhibit at the Jamestown Exposition. This appointment will be noted with pleasure by Mrs. Page's many Richmond friends.

Sailing Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Thomas, guests at Buckroe Beach Hotel, gave a delightful sailing party Monday afternoon in honor of Miss Nannie Walker, of Rocky Mount, who has been visiting Miss Gladys Neale at Buckroe.

Among the guests were Miss Walker, of Rocky Mount; Miss Steed, of Norfolk; Miss Ellyson, of Danville; Misses Lucy Throckmorton, Nannie Noble, Gladys Neale, Sadie Neale, Susie Edwards, Messrs. Ralnes, Throckmorton, Adrian Thomas, Wilkinson, and Brothers, of Richmond, and Mr. and Miss Westbrook, of Newport News; Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. L. Neale, and Mrs. D. P. Edwards were popular chaperons.

After stopping at Ocean View, Old Point and Pine Beach, the party landed at Newport News, where they were given a reception by Mr. Westbrook.

All returned to Buckroe delighted with the royal good time they had received at the hands of their charming host and hostess.

Miss Walker is an exceedingly pretty young lady, and has been the guest of honor at several card and theater parties during her stay at Buckroe Beach.

YOUNG WOMAN OF WEALTH MASTER MARINER ON YACHT

Miss Jane Morgan, One of the Only Five Women Qualified to Command Steam Vessels.

LOVES THE OUTDOOR LIFE

Plays Baseball Better Than the Piano and Prefers Cricket to Crocheting.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 14.—Commanding one of the finest steam yachts afloat, Captain Jane Morgan, master mariner, cleared this port on Monday for the North Cape and the Mediterranean. There are but five women in the world who are legally qualified to command steam vessels, and Miss Morgan, master of the Waturus, was the last to qualify. Her first-class certificate from the United States Board of Engineers is not a week old.

The Waturus is a ship of 600 tons burden, having a length over all of 210 feet with 27 feet of beam. She draws 16 feet of water. A full complement of officers and men makes up the crew which has, for three years past, included Jane Morgan, able-bodied seaman. About a year ago, Miss Morgan secured a second-class certificate, giving her authority to navigate the rivers and bays tributary to the harbor of Philadelphia. Then she qualified in a similar manner for the Coast Guard, and now she has full rights as a captain of ship in all the oceans of the world.

Captain Morgan, or "Captain Jane," as she is best known, is a daughter of "Candace" Morgan, vice-president of the Gas Light and controlling factor in the corporation controlling all the public utilities in Ohio and Indiana. Mr. Morgan is aboard the Waturus seeking rest, and it is his intention to have his daughter sail the ship, while Captain Cushman, the rated master of the vessel, takes a vacation on board.

There is nothing strange about Jane Morgan, master of the Waturus, unless it is considered unusual for a girl to play baseball better than she plays the piano, or that she prefers cricket to crocheting. Captain Morgan is a very modest, quiet, and most unassuming person, not a bit spoiled by her father's millions, or by her own cleverness. She loves the water and all the great outdoors. She lives in the open air, rides and drives and runs on land and rows and paddles and sails on the water. Fear be away for some length of time. Mrs. S. Logan has gone to visit her sister in Orange.

Mrs. Carter B. Snow, nurse and baby, are spending the summer at Alleghany Hotel, Goshen. Mrs. Snow's health has much improved.

Miss Florence Newman left last Sunday to spend some time in Norfolk and at Ocean View. Before returning, she will visit Elizabeth City, N. C.

Mrs. Henry Monrois has returned to her home in Louisa county, after undergoing medical treatment in this city.

Miss Mary Pendleton, of St. Luke's Hospital, is visiting her sister, Mrs. L. W. Craig, in Roanoke.

Mrs. Chesley Kinney and her guest, Miss is an all-time stranger to her, and perseverance has the dominant trait of her character.

To qualify for a master mariner's certificate, Miss Morgan made an exhaustive study of astronomy. Then she took up mathematics and geography under competent masters, and always kept herself abreast of the literature of the sea. She mastered the mechanical details of ship construction and made a personal inspection of the range lights and harbors along the Atlantic seaboard. Then she studied the flag-signal system and the mechanism of the sextant and the compass, so that when she had well versed herself in the laws of navigation, the shore laws of storms and the rules of the sea-road, she was ready for the final examination. Just successfully passed. In the meantime, she was continually complying with the law by "spending three years in actual service aboard a registered and duly commissioned ship rated for the high seas." The present cruise of the Waturus was cover a period of six months, and Miss Morgan will command the vessel throughout the trip, Captain Cushman being the guest of her father on board.

Ellen Gulson, of Richmond, has returned to Mrs. Kinney's home in Staunton, after a pleasant visit to Snyder, Va., where they were the guests of Mrs. H. L. Wilson.

Master John Smith is the guest of his uncle, the Rev. McDaniel Rucker, in Franklin, Va.

Miss Mollie Hicks and little Miss Madge Dixon have returned to Richmond, after a stay with friends at Oak, Va.

Mrs. J. R. Blank has returned to her home here, after a visit to her mother, Mrs. Louisa Gill, at Milford, Caroline county.

Mrs. Jacob Reinhardt and little grand-
